

FOUR BALLOTS TAKEN WITHOUT RESULT

EFFORTS TO NOMINATE CANDIDATE FAILS AFTER HOT TEN HOUR SESSION

Republican Convention Adjourns Until 10 A. M. Today When Another Attempt Will be Made—Lowden and Wood Show Greatest Strength on Last Ballot—Johnson Loses Few Votes.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Four ballots in the Republican national convention today failed to unite the necessary majority on a nominee.

It was the first time since 1888 that more than three ballots found the party without a choice and the seventh time since the nomination of Lincoln that more than one ballot had been required.

Wood and Lowden were at their high water mark when the convention, after the fourth ballot, adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Johnson had received on the fourth seven and one-half votes less than he received on the third.

The convention then stood: Wood 314 1-2; Lowden 289; Johnson 140 1-2; Hoover 5; Harding 61 1-2; Sprout 79 1-2; Coolidge 25; Butler 20; Knox 2; Poindexter 16; Sutherland 3; Borah 1; Dupont 2; LaFollette 22; Watson 4.

At the adjournment hour it still remained a three cornered fight between Wood, Lowden and Johnson, for the remaining twelve contestants held only 240 scattering votes among them and most of them had been losing steadily since the first ballot some of the big three making accessions at their expense.

With these scattering votes Hiram Johnson still was holding the balance of power, his 14th of the votes alone even if cast for either Wood or Lowden would not be sufficient to nominate either, and there was not the slightest indication of Johnson delegates deserting their nominee.

Many Shifts Made.
The four ballots saw various shifts and changes, with a general declining of the favorite son and complimentary vote. The vote for Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of New York steadily dwindled until on the closing ballot it stood at 20. Lowden forces took most of the accessions from New York.

Twenty-four votes from Wisconsin cast for LaFollette on three successive ballots and hisses and cat calls to 22 to closing. It was the first convention in years at which LaFollette himself had not appeared as a candidate. Herbert Hoover's maximum strength was 5 votes; Philander Knox's was 2. Gov. Sprout's was 79 1-2 made up of accessions to his 17 of Pennsylvania's 78 which stood easily through the fight.

It was difficult to understand the sudden adjournment after four ballots had been taken. At the end of the third ballot the Johnson forces moved an adjournment and insisted upon a roll call after the motion had been defeated by a vote of 25 to 1. The roll call showed the delegates voting overwhelmingly to continue the balloting. Toward the close of the fourth ballot it was seen that the Wood and Lowden both had small gains and that the Johnson vote would show its first loss.

Senator Borah rushed to the platform and urged that an adjournment be taken. Some of the Lowden people had been appealed to by delegates who sincerely wished to avoid the hardship of an all night session and they consented not to oppose an adjournment motion. There is nothing to indicate that the Johnson and Lowden forces were working together by design but adjournment was obtained through their joint efforts. The Wood forces were bitterly disappointed as they believed they could continue to gain until their total would climb over the four hundred mark, if an adjournment could be avoided.

They hoped that then would come a landslide or band wagon from tired delegates. The Wood forces are saying tonight that there were more negative votes than affirmative but they admitted that the latter made more noise and that Mr. Lodge probably was justified in ruling that adjournment had been ordered.

They are also saying they showed bad strategy in not insisting on a roll call.

Ad's Work All Night.
The adjournment only transferred the battle from the floor of the Coliseum to conference rooms where the leaders worked all night re-forming their battle fronts hoping to bring about a realignment of forces and turn the tide at the session tomorrow.

Unless their efforts fail, the nominee is actually being made made tonight, but whether it will

IN A GRUELING TEN HOUR SESSION conducted in intense summer heat and without interruption for recess or refreshment, the convention buckled down to the job of attempting to put itself on schedule and heard, in succession nominating and seconding speeches for eleven candidates, and then turned to the balloting votes being cast for the eleven and numerous others.

Hoover Shows Little Strength.
Herbert Hoover's maximum vote on the day's session was five votes Nicholas Murray Butler's strength gradually drifted away, much of it going to Lowden. Other voters were scattered among the eight of the eleven candidates who were placed in nomination.

After the second ballot the Lowden and Wood men feeling encouraged by their steady gains defeated a motion to adjourn and held the convention in session for two more ballots.

Wood's net gain after the first ballot was twenty-seven votes. Lowden's was seventy-seven and a half and Johnson's was seventeen. That the big three each had accessions to their forces during the four ballots.

Wood and Lowden were making gains when the balloting closed. Johnson on the fourth ballot had lost seven and a half votes from the high figure which was on the third ballot. None of the dark horses had gained any particular advantage.

It was the first Republican convention in many years which had gone past the third ballot before finding a presidential nominee. For nearly ten straight hours the delegates sat in the convention hall, in the broiling weather, and without rest or refreshment demanded to hear in a continuous session the nominating and seconding speeches for eleven candidates and got through four successive ballots.

When the convention adjourned soon after 7 o'clock, Chicago time no one in it had eaten since breakfast, and the adjournment of the convention session only marked the beginning of a series of all night conferences and maneuvering, which the chiefs of the various forces believed will bring a decision to their forces for the re-nominating of the balloting tomorrow morning.

Unless all signs fail, and the plans of leaders miscarry, the necessary strength to nominate a candidate will be rounded up tonight unless the convention threatens to reassemble the Democratic convention in 1912 in Baltimore which nominated Woodrow Wilson.

ALL NIGHT CONFERENCES HELD BY LEADERS IN TRYING TO OBTAIN VOTES

Maneuvering Among Lieutenants of Big Three at High Pitch—Lowden, Wood and Johnson Forces Claim Victory at Balloting Which Will Take Place Today—Bitter Fight Expected.

BULLETIN
CHICAGO, June 12.—(Saturday).—At 1 o'clock this morning after a conference with state leaders, Frank H. Hitchcock, field marshal of the Wood forces said:

"The Wood delegates will stick. On the first ballot today (Saturday) we will have a decided gain. I am greatly encouraged. I have been informed about the conferences of leaders opposed to Wood and that they have been trying to center upon a dark horse candidate."

BULLETIN
CHICAGO, June 12.—(Saturday).—As the conferences were breaking up after midnight it was plain that many who participated felt that neither Lowden nor Wood would be the nominee and that consideration of the dark horse list had been the chief subject of discussion. Opinion was too divided for an agreement and few were confident of being able to center upon anyone before tomorrow. Four or five men said to include Harding, Knox, Hughes, and Coolidge were said to be regarded by most of the conferees as qualified.

Chicago, June 11.—At midnight the maneuvering and conferring among the convention leaders were at their highest and centered at a conference at one of the downtown hotels with Senator Lodge, Senator Smoot, Senator Watson, former Senator W. Murray Crane, Senator Borah and others present.

Other conferences were going on at other hotels and various clubs. Wood headquarters expressed satisfaction with the situation. Lowden headquarters was predicting sufficient accessions tomorrow to start the governor toward the necessary majority and it was known that compromise offers of various sorts were being carried to Johnson headquarters.

While the Pennsylvania delegation was caucusing and agreeing to stand by Governor Sprout as long as they feel he has a chance of being nominated, the Lowden forces were counting on gains from that quarter on a break-up which they were expecting tomorrow and both the Lowden and Wood forces were estimating possible gains from New York. Both the Wood and Lowden forces had their eyes turned toward the Michigan block which has been standing solidly for Johnson. Lowden headquarters was also counting on a gain from Wisconsin if the 22 LaFollette votes should break up.

Both Lowden and Wood forces were claiming gains from a break they predicted in the Michigan block.

Conferences were continually going on at Wood headquarters, and also at Governor Lowden's rooms at his hotel.

A. T. Hart, national congressman from Kentucky, who cast the Kentucky vote solid for Lowden on all but the first ballot, today predicted Lowden would be nominated Saturday.

"One thing seems assured beyond doubt," said he. "It will either be Lowden or a dark horse."

Fred Upham, national treasurer and another Lowden leader, said:

"The race will be settled before morning. New York and Pennsylvania can swing the nomination wherever they want it to go."

It was said overtures from the Wood forces were being carried to the Johnson camp with the argument that the Johnson forces were the natural allies of the Wood group to prevent the nomination of Governor Lowden.

Floor Leader Knox of the Wood forces was understood to be in negotiation with some Johnson delegates from the northwestern states.

Talk of Senator Knox as a compromise arose again coincident with the conferences, and carried with it the argument that he would have the support of Senator Johnson.

Governor Coolidge's name also was associated with the Knox talk. Senator Poindexter, himself a candidate, said he did not believe Wood or Lowden could poll four hundred votes.

"Inevitably the delegates see this situation," he added, "will in the effort to make a nomination go to other candidates. I do not think the winner can be named now, but he will be soon developed."

Senator Harding said:

"I am very well satisfied. The outlook for some one in the second row of contenders has never been brighter."

A large majority of the Hard- ing votes cast today are pledged Jacksonville, Fla. ... 82 92 68

SEVEN MEMBERS OF CREW MISSING
PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—Seven of the crew of Eagle Boat No. 25, which capsized in a squall in the Delaware river today, were unaccounted for tonight. It was at first reported five men had been caught in the engine room and drowned, but navy officials said this had not been confirmed and that it was possible some of the missing sailors had been picked up by small craft.

The craft carried a crew of seven officers and 51 men. Fifty were picked up and one man made his way out while the boat was floating bottom up and swam ashore.

In the second round Tollri forged ahead and was three up with four to play. Gardner made it all square at the 36th hole to lose the extra hole.

The street car people have done their work, but it may be worn out before the balance of the work is completed.

SOME DEFINITE FIGURES.

Perhaps many people in the past six months have wondered what it would cost to build a modest home and build it right. There have been some stories of six-room cottages costing as much as $14,000, and in these cases more might easily have been added, says the Decatur Review.

We get more definite figures in a news column from Mattoon, G. S. Tarbox, is building a real though modest home in Mattoon, Ill. It is to have seven rooms, sleeping porch, tiled bath room, and all that. Also it is to be a brick veneer house. Plainly it is to be made good, though there are no great flourishes. And this home "will cost in the neighborhood of $28,000," the news item tells us. Real estate men say that if one is building for rent there must be a gross return of 12 per cent on the investment to net the owner 6 per cent. In this case Mr. Tarbox would have to get close to $300 a month for his Mattoon home. Think of it!

WE WANT ADS.

The "want ad" serves a tremendously important public service since it brings together yearly millions of employers and employees in addition to the many other services it renders, said C. L. Perkins, of Highland Park, Illinois, in addressing members of the newspaper department at the annual convention of the Associated Advertising clubs of the world. The building up of the classified department in a newspaper is of great importance to the reader as well as to the owner, declared Mr. Perkins.

"As an economic force for good the want-ad is underestimated. The one hundred leading classified mediums of the country printed last year, 308,488,251 lines of want-ads or about 51,414,708 separate advertisements. These advertisements were divided into approximately the following groups:

- Employment copy, 15,450,000 want ads.
- Real estate copy, 10,275,000 want ads.
- For sale, 7,725,000 want ads.
- Automobile copy, 6,125,000 want ads.
- Rental copy, 5,125,000 want ads.
- Service copy, 4,100,000 want ads.
- Public notice, 2,600,000 want ads.

"Think of the want ad good accomplished through the want ad pages of these 100 papers which were able to bring together 15,450,000 employers and employees! Or consider the reverse—what would have happened to the business world if there had been no want ads to help solve the employment problem?

"By means of these 10,275,000 real estate advertisements, many people were enabled to become property owners and since property owners are more substantial citizens—never radicals—these advertisements benefited thousands of individuals and raised the standard of our citizenship.

"Who can measure the good and happiness resulting to buyers and sellers from the 7,725,000 advertisements offering for sale an infinite variety of articles?"

GOV. LOWDEN SHOWS UNEXPECTED STRENGTH

Four ballots were taken by the National Republican convention Friday evening before adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock this morning.

On the ballots that were taken General Wood was in the lead, with Governor Lowden a close second. Both made material gains on the fourth ballot, General Wood's total reaching 314 and Governor Lowden's 289. On the fourth ballot Senator Johnson lost several votes.

As was predicted before the balloting commenced, New York's vote soon started to leave Butler the favorite son candidate. Contrary to earlier predictions, however, Lowden was the greatest gainer through this defection. His total gain on the four ballots was 77 votes.

Delegates favoring Wood and Lowden fought the motion to adjourn until Saturday morning, wishing if possible to ballot until a candidate was named. Local men who follow political affairs expressed the opinion last night that had the convention taken a few more ballots it would have resulted in the nomination of Governor Lowden.

It is probable there were many attempts on the part of managers of the various candidates made during the night to secure pledges that would assure their nomination soon after convening this morning.

Friends of Governor Lowden, locally, feel very hopeful over his prospects. They believe that he will be able to hold his in-structed delegates long enough to secure sufficient votes from un-instructed delegations to give him the nomination.

There seems little hope that the convention will be stampeded to a dark horse candidate. The three leading candidates seem to have their strength well in hand, and it looks as though victory would finally go to one of them, with Governor Lowden's chances as bright as any.

Rippling Rhymes By Walt Mason

PLACING THE BLAME.

Of all wild times these are the worst; our divers goats we lose; and sages with an aching thirst blame things to lack of booze. The honest toiler can't get stewed when his day's work is o'er, and so he strikes, in bitter mood, and jumps the useful chore. If he continues at his task, though angry, sad and grey, oh, what the thirty sages ask, what will that man's wages buy? He cannot buy a crate of gin nor purchase beer or ale; then why toil on for use- less (in)? And what's the use of kale? He cannot seek the Gilded Hole where large glass schooners clank; he simply has to take his roll, and put it in the bank. He has to buy a house and lot, or get his children duds; for in the village there's no spot where he can purchase suds. He has to spend for useful things the toll-stained, hard-earned sum that he would gladly see take wings where reigned the Demon Rum. Then who can wonder that he spins the job with wages fine, when he can't buy with all he earns a flagon or a stein?

USES OF THE BIG MACHINES.

The county board has allotted the four big tractors to the various parts of the county. One goes to Mendota, one to Franklin, one to Sinclair and one to Woodson. The uses to which they may be put are numerous. At the time when road dragging is all important the big cars will glide over the highways in a hurry. If anything is to be hauled they will make short work of it sparing horseflesh and saving much in other ways. The board will not insist on the trucks remaining in one place all the time but will use them as seems best to the advantage of the county.

FAREWELL FOR REV. M. L. MACKAY.

On Wednesday evening the McCabe M. E. church gave a farewell reception for Rev. M. L. Mackay and family, he having just finished the course in bachelor of arts at Illinois College and will soon leave for Chicago and later will go to Boston, Mass., and enter the theological seminary at that place. The reception was long to be remembered and with his friends here. The brief program rendered was much in keeping with the hour, the brass colors were also carried out both in the decorations and serving. The church thru Mrs. Ellen Cohn presented him with a beautiful solid gold watch fob. The friends gave him $17.83 as a silver offering. We regret to lose Rev. Mr. Mackay yet we feel that our loss will be another gain. They go with our very best wishes for their success. We thank the friends for what they did for them.

Deaths

Clement.

Miss E. Florence Clement passed away at her home on North Prairie street Friday afternoon after an illness of several years.

Deceased was the daughter of the late Irving and Elizabeth Galbraith Clement, and was born in this city. After attending the public schools she entered the Young Ladies' athensium for the study of art.

After graduation from this institution she taught art for four years at the state school for the deaf. Then she was head of the art department of the Iowa school for the deaf for fourteen years and afterward was for nine years with the school for the deaf in South Dakota.

She then gave up active teaching because of failing health. For the past four years she has made her home with her sister, Mrs. L. F. Hite, who gave her every care and attention.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. May Clement Hite, of this city and four brothers, E. I. Clement of Omaha, Neb.; Charles, Robert L. and H. C. Clement, all of this city.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Smiley Predicts $20 Flour.

Flour at $20 a barrel will come before the price of breadstuffs begin to decline.

This prediction was made recently by E. J. Smiley, secretary of the Kansas Grain Dealers' Association, who delivered an address before the convention of the Trans-Mississippi Association of Master Bakers, in session at the Chamber of Commerce, Topeka, Kan. Mr. Smiley was one of the principal speakers on the afternoon program. He cast a rather gloomy outlook upon the prospects for a big wheat crop this year.

Barring financial trouble, bread grains will continue to soar for at least another year, he said. Even at that the price of bread has not been boosted as much as other necessities, he declared.

Why Should You Use a National Vacuum Cleaner

BECAUSE: It washes much quicker, does it much cleaner and with a great deal less work to the operator.

Why Does It Wash Quicker

BECAUSE: The rapid action of the dasher driving the hot water and suds through the soiled clothes forces the dirt out. The agitation of the hot water makes the dirt respond immediately. Two to six minutes will remove the dirt from any fabric that can be cleaned with soap and water.

Why Does It Wash Cleaner

BECAUSE: By the vacuum principle the dirt is all forced OUT, instead of rubbing part of it into the fabric.

Why with Less Work to the Operator

BECAUSE: By the vacuum principle it requires only power to handle the water, not the clothes. This eliminates the wear on the fabric and makes the machine run much easier.

In order to fully appreciate the real value of THE NATIONAL VACUUM WASHER, YOU MUST GIVE IT A TRIAL.

Complete Story of Friday Night's Hour Session

Coliseum Filled Early; Day One of Hottest of Year

COLISEUM, Chicago, June 10.

In spite of the sweltering temperature inside the convention hall, the delegates began to pile into their places a full half hour before the day's session was to begin. They all were rearing to have it all over with and the possibility that the nominations might be made today, and convention ended seemed to take some of the edge off their distress from the heat. It gave promise of being the hottest day of the convention in all respects. The sun got to work with vigor, exceeding even the feverish efforts of candidates' managers in their eleventh hour to line up a winning combination.

Most of those on the convention floor and in the galleries came with fans and many of the delegates stripped off their coats before they took their seats. For the time being, at least, the hot weather was the big feature in the convention picture.

At 9:30 a. m., however, when the convention should have been called to order, there were still great patches of empty seats in the delegates' sections and the platform was almost empty. The crowd sent up an evergrowing rumble of conversation, while it waited for the party leaders to get through with their conferences in their hotels a mile away.

During the wait the delegates were still asking one another who was to be nominated, and the usual reply was distinctly of the "dramatic" character. The managers for all the candidates tried to outdo one another in confidence over the result. The Wood people were claiming a victory by the third or fourth ballot. The predictions of the others were less definite.

Revises Plans
The Wood managers, who had planned to have a string of second speeches for the candidates, revised their program at the last minute so that only Frank Knox of New Hampshire, and Mrs. Douglas Robinson of New York would second General Wood's nomination.

When nine forty-five passed the delegates space was pretty well filled but not a single one of the first line leaders had put in his appearance. The band filled in with something that sounded like a lullaby. For the first time since the convention began candidates for the presidency were missing from the floor. Dr. Butler of New York gave his proxy to a woman who sat in a box. Governor Sproul dropped in for a few minutes but announced he would return to his hotel when balloting started. The friends of Senator Johnson said they did not expect their candidate to show himself in the Coliseum.

DuPont Not Nominated
Delaware delegates said the plan to nominate T. Coleman DuPont had been abandoned but the delegation would vote for him on the first ballot.

Convention Late in Starting
A robust delegate from West Virginia, manifestly preparing for a tempestuous time, took off his gaiters and put them in his pocket. Just about that time the band played "Reuben, Reuben, I've Been Thinking."

At a few minutes to ten, heat, music and conversation still constituted the sum total of the convention's business. The lateness of the leaders caused much speculation among the rank and file who wondered what deals to be made in the nomination deadlock might be underway.

Two minutes before ten, Senator Lodge, the chairman, and Will Hays appeared on the platform but the delegates hardly noticed. The band was choked off and a minute later the convention was called to order. Senator Lodge rapping for order on a newly made gavel plank.

Yesterday the thin table, near John Meyer of Chicago offered prayer. A new pounding board for Senator Lodge's gavel was an innovation. It was composed of several planks as a shock absorber for a table, but it lacked the table's punch.

The delegates kept impatiently swiveling their fans and shuffling their feet during the prayer, and afterward Senator Lodge rapped hard many times before he got the convention quieted down.

By a rising vote and in a roar of applause the convention then adopted a resolution offered by Alexander P. Moore of Pittsburgh, expressing "inexpressible loss" over the death of Theodore Roosevelt. "Loved" unutterably now and to be loved as long as our nation cherishes its noble patriots.

Senator Lodge announced amid more cheers that the time had come for the convention to hear nominations for the presidency. Alabama passed when the roll call of states began. Arizona yielding to Kansas. In a noisy demonstration Governor Allen was escorted to the platform and began his speech nominating General Wood.

Senator Lodge shook hands with Governor Allen and the crowd cheered, waving Wood pennants, hats and handkerchiefs.

Allen Presents General Wood

(The Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, June 11.—Described as the outstanding candidate in the minds of the whole people, Major General Leonard Wood was formally nominated today by Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas for the Republican presidential nomination.

"A plain blunt man with a blunt belief in facts," Governor Allen said of General Wood. "He is today the best known American."

"No man in America has been given so many constructive things to do in this generation, and no one denies that whatever he has undertaken he has done superlatively well."

"An unexpected period of confusion has come upon us in the aftermath of the great war. Old ways are lost and leadership, hesitant and indecisive, drifts upon an uncharted sea."

Under the weak hands of a timorous government the social disorders and class-mindedness, caught from the world's struggle have grown to alarming proportions.

The unchecked encroachment of sinister greed, the appalling waste of public money, the immoral pandering to class interests and class prejudice have brought us to a point where the nation demands and the world expects from this great council a leader chosen out of the great need and not through the cunning of political expediency.

"It is not necessary to ask for assurances from General Wood. This is the witness of his service."

As Governor of Cuba.

"You ask for a business man. We present to you a record of four years as governor of Cuba a record which gained him international fame as the most successful civil administrator the country has known. Leonard Wood's services in Cuba constitute a page of history which records the cleanest and most unselfish thing one nation ever did for a needy people. Chosen to work out the benevolent policy of McKinley toward the people of the island for whom we had sacrificed our sons, he was given a free hand."

"He reorganized the island and framed a model of government which stands today as proof of his sanity and constructive genius. His wisdom encompassed all the activities of the people. He touched with his vital interest its dead agriculture, developed its railways, taught the Cubans how to make just laws relating to everything from municipal administration to general taxation. He built American intelligence into a school system, re-organized the struggling forces of civil life into orderly government, made roads, introduced sanitation and hygiene, stamped out yellow fever and pernicious malaria and fashioned it all with humaneness and stability that has withstood the strain of changing years."

"Possessing the highest degree of business capacity, it was something more than the work of a business man. It was the work of a statesman who had narrowed his vision to the purely business life. It was the accomplishment of a great national organizer."

"A president must be a business man and more. He must have a broad view of the internal situation, he must know politics, for politics is what gives us our government, be it good or bad. Government is no better than its politics and to improve the one you must improve the other."

Must Understand World Affairs.
"The vague longing for a business man for president will not be satisfied by one who knows only business. The president must understand world affairs and the crossing and re-crossing currents of social and economic aspirations. It was this broad capacity that brought to Leonard Wood at the conclusion of his work in Cuba the command of the leaders of the period."

"A president must be able to interpret the shadow of coming events. We do not need to speculate concerning Leonard Wood's foresight."

"When the great war broke upon the consciousness of the American people with a terrified shock, it found that Leonard Wood had been preparing. We heard from him no platitudes about a million men springing to arms over night. On his own initiative he established the Plattsburg training camps, created the first line of the national defense and gave to the thousands of magnificent young American men who volunteered a new definition of loyalty, a new opportunity for service, a new vision of their national obligation."

"We saw him accepting what ever task was given into his hands with the cheerful obedience of those who submerge self in service in our state, where he trained many of our splendid young men, inspiring them with his spirit, fashioning them into the 89th division, the people witnessed his work with such pride that when the governor of our state, my honored predecessor, made him by proclamation a citizen of Kansas, every other citizen applauded."

"We watched him go away to the point of embarkation and then at the last moment we read with consternation that his great desire to take his division to the field was not to be granted."

Work in World War.

"This man was no whimperer. Not an hour was lost in sulking. Not a word wasted in criticism. Not an instant spent in mourning over his personal disappointment. We see him coming back to train another division. 'If we can,' he said, 'we'll make it even better than the one with which I had hoped to serve in France.'"

"The American soldier is a citizen soldier. Leonard Wood holds fast to the traditions of the great citizen soldiers of the republic. A plain, blunt man, with blunt belief in facts, he is today the best known American. In the frank expression of his beliefs there is no hidden motive."

"A candidate for high office has ever gone to the people with a soul and mind so frankly revealed as Leonard Wood."

"No endeavor of his life presents in truer colors his calm and steady strength than the work at Gary. It was the old quarrel that took him there, the struggle between those who hire and those who toil, the only form of civil strife which government still allows to menace a helpless public. He carried to that district the guarantee of fair play. He had been advised not to go to Gary. He was told the situation was full of dynamite. He could have sent a subordinate, but he went in person and dominated the situation by the force of absolute justice. Not a shot was fired or a bayonet used. His calm decision at that hour not only brought security to Gary, but success and profound relief to the entire district. The success of his same and just endeavor brought back to men their faith in government."

"Again at Omaha, in the racial riots, in West Virginia, in the labor troubles, he visualized not military power, but the peculiar determination which should be always the American pledge to protect the rights of all by firm and righteous government."

"No man can know without recognizing the liberality of his mind, his openness to conviction. As Roosevelt once said of him, 'he is hospitable to advice.'"

Would Pick Best Men.

"As president he will not seek to create for himself a neutral background out of mediocre men. The nation will have that to which the people are entitled in its councils—the united brain power of real leaders."

"The sum total of preferential expression marks him as the outstanding candidate in the minds of the whole people."

"The choice is made now may mould the character of the nation of fifty years and perhaps longer, for relative minds are plastic and the leadership that comes now will go far to determine the character of our government henceforth."

"There isn't an American worthy to be here who does not believe in the future leadership of this country. We'll have that leadership when we're worthy, and that leadership will depend upon any international society we may join. It will depend upon the success which we make of the experiment of human government here, and to that call the instinct of every man must rise."

"With full appreciation of the challenge of the hour I present the name of the man who fits the hour—Leonard Wood."

During Governor Allen's recital of General Wood's record of public service the Wood supporters interjected frequent cheers. There was much moving around among the delegates, however, and a mild rumble of conversation kept up. There were many Wood boosters in the gallery and they kept breaking in with applause, as Governor Allen recounted the achievements of his candidate.

When the governor made a crack at William Jennings Bryan's celebrated dictum about a million men springing to arms over night, he looked down at where Mr. Bryan was sitting in the press box. But the Nebraska man had his nose to his manuscript, trying to write on indistinctly while a plump woman writer was shoving through the narrow aisle behind his chair. He heard the reference he did not let on.

Governor Allen worked hard at his speech and the perspiration rolled down his cheeks like a quick-witted laundry. While the speech was going on arrangements were made for Colonel Roosevelt, when she took the platform to second General Wood's nomination. The first woman ever to perform that function in a national convention, she was introduced by Lodge. To stop the demonstration Mrs. Robinson waved her hand. She spoke with a clear, carrying voice with crisp enunciation aptly heard with ease to the depths of the hall.

Mrs. Robinson declared she wanted Leonard Wood for president, "not because he was my brother's friend, but because he is his type of man."

Mrs. Robinson spoke in a well pitched ringing voice. "I can speak to you as one of the mothers of New York state," said she, "who know it was because of the foresight and courage of Leonard Wood that their sons went overseas fighting machines and not as common cannon fodder."

Mrs. Robinson spoke with feeling and a direct forceful delivery which reminded many of her late brother.

The crowd cheered when she said:

"We want not the man who takes the psychological moment. We want the man who makes them." With emphatic gestures Mrs. Robinson said: "We must have the kind of a man for president who will look from America out and not from Europe in."

"No man can tell," said Mrs. Robinson, "that had Theodore Roosevelt or Leonard Wood been in the white house the Germans would have marched thru Belgium to nothing more than the ringing words of a protest. We never want again a man who waits between right and neutrality."

She was loudly cheered at the end of her speech.

Arkansas Yields to Illinois.

Senator Lodge soon got a hearing however and the roll of the states was continued. Arkansas yielded to Illinois and Representative William A. Rodenberg of that state was presented to nominate Governor Lowden.

A big man with a big voice, Representative Rodenberg spoke without manuscript, beginning deliberately and warming up the Lowden supporters to repeated cheering.

Rodenberg Presents Governor Lowden

Like Governor Frank O. Lowden, Lincoln, antedating the delegates to the Republican National convention that once before, many years ago, Illinois was called upon to furnish a man when the nation was in dire distress. Congressman William A. Rodenberg of Illinois today placed the name of Illinois war governor in nomination for the presidency of the United States.

That was all of the Johnson speechmaking and the call of the states was resumed. Colorado had no candidate. Connecticut yielded to Massachusetts and Speaker Gillette placed Governor McClellan in nomination.

COMPLETE STORY OF FRIDAY'S LONG TEN HOUR'S SESSION

The Union, the Republican party met through its long years of triumphs through its valiant service to the Republic and its promotion of the people's progress. It battled for national prosperity and sound finance under the leadership of Ohio's knightliest son, William McKinley. It raised the victorious standard of the square deal and obedience to the law at the call of that stalwart red-blooded American, Theodore Roosevelt. But vast as are its achievements and brilliant as has been its leadership, the man nominated here today must be of type big enough to enable him to look with level gaze to the leadership of other years, and to face, undaunted, problems more serious than those which confronted Washington or Lincoln. We have emerged from a World War victorious and unafraid; in that great struggle to maintain the national honor and preserve free government among men, Republicans on battlefield, in congress and in private life did their full share as Americans, regardless of the repeated insults of the most bitterly partisan administration in the history of the Republic and the official pronouncement that the only way to sustain the Republic and be patriotic was to vote the ticket of the party that in 1916, because he "kept us out of war," and seek to win in 1920, because he "kept us out of peace."

In the fevered atmosphere that settled about the world, war-worn, weary, perditional vapors had sprung up, setting the peace of the world and the perpetuity of our own Republic.

"Bolshevism and anarchy stalk fiery-eyed and militant across the planet and even dare to shake their bristly hair in our own country, undimmed by an administration that furnishes by its own autocratic unconstitutional acts the very soil in which I. W. W.-ism flourishes and which culminates against radicalism through one department of the government and encourages it by important executive and diplomatic appointments in others instead of orderly liberty regulated by law, under Democratic mis-rule, this government has become an oligarchy, in which the few rule the many by intimidation, government by threat must cease.

"The necessities of our country, unprepared for war, furnished excuse for expenditures of unparalleled extravagance. This wastefulness was endured without a murmur while the war lasted, but now the people demand and will have, in which the extravagance must give way to economy if the country would avoid bankruptcy.

"Production is hampered and hamstrung by so-called governmental regulation of business by those who understand neither business nor government. To add to these domestic woes, those in authority, by self-assumed mandate, seized in the face of flat repudiation by the American people at the ballot box, have undertaken to sign away the stroke of a pen, the independence won by the sword of Washington. The spirit of unswerving loyalty to American tradition and institutions, upheld by every president from Washington to Roosevelt, has been superseded by a vague, misbegotten, polygamous patriotism that would scatter its affections indiscriminately among Bengalese and Bolsheviks, and which would prove as unsatisfactory and trouble-breeding in international as in domestic affairs. From this hopeless tangle of unparalleled inefficiency, unbridled extravagance, unconstitutional usurpation of power and un-American bartering away of national independence, the Democratic party is impotent to solve these problems because it has grown and fattened on the very evil policies and practices which must now be wiped out forever if the Republic is to live.

The Republican party here assembled, with the faces of the heroic dead looking down upon us and commanding us with mute lips to stand by the principles of the party and defend to the uttermost every American ideal, pronouncing unequivocally, in favor of constitutional government and obedience to law, in favor of repeal of war-time legislation, not needed in times of peace, but seized upon by a power-grasping autocratic administration to perpetuate itself; in favor of legislation to promote industrial peace, not by American right and because he is rich nor a poor man because he is poor, but rather by protecting the upright citizen, rich or poor, because he is upright; in favor of the ratification of only such a peace treaty as, while fully discharging our obligation to other nations, will at the same time protect inequity, the rights of our own people exclusively, every purely American question and in favor of the maintenance of the principle of an American protective tariff and an American merchant marine. These are bound to be the dominant issues of the forthcoming campaign. Then, why not name as our candidate a man whose record is the party platform, for the record of Ohio's candidate is the record of the Republican party in the last decade.

"He fought for an American merchant marine to carry our commerce under the American flag to all ports of the earth, while other leaders were skeptical or quiescent; by the side of McKinley and Mark Hanna, he bore the heat and burden of the day in the struggle for rehabilitation of American industry; he stood on the platform of the choice of both William H. Taft and Theodore Roosevelt for chairman of the convention; and it is only fair to add that as a member of the senate he enjoyed the intimate and confidential friendship of both these great leaders. He had the honor to present to the senate and to secure the enactment of the legislation providing for the Roosevelt division for service in France—legislation which was eagerly received by a patriotic people, but which was not utilized because of executive partisan bigotry without a particle in the mind of the war. Thus speak of his cordial relationship with Colonel Roosevelt because it shows the capacity of really great men to overlook minor differences for the common good—not because Ohio acclaims him the successor of Roosevelt, but because he is a worthy successor; his mantle fell on no earthly shoulders; no chieftain remains to be a worthy example will abide. May we not learn from it that lesson of broad vision and uncompromising Americanism without which party fealty is an empty thing, and a free Republic only a phantom memory? As a member of the committee on foreign relations of the United States senate, Ohio's candidate had prompt and honest part in framing the reservations to the peace treaty which were adopted by the senate and which will be the battle-ground in the forthcoming campaign, between Americanism and the American people, and the candidate whose record is the party platform.

"The personal character he has the dignity, urbanity and breadth of vision of McKinley. Like that other great Ohioan, he is one of the common folk—best loved by those who know him best. With no working capital other than his own ability and capacity for self-reliance, he has prospered in business employing many men and in the shop where he works side by side with his men there has never been an hour of labor trouble in 25 years of friendly co-operation.

"A laborer and professional life, a great newspaper, he knows the many-sided industrial problems and the capacity for self-reliance, the same quiet good sense and spirit of co-operation that have characterized his business and professional life. "William McKinley, the great president because he understood the viewpoint of congress and knew how to co-operate with the executive department of the government. We have had enough of one-man government. It is time to resume the functions of government as set forth by the constitution. We do not need a dictator, an autocrat, a king or a czar. We need a man of courage, poise and decision who, while respecting himself, will direct the general course of government, not so cocksure of his infallibility as to bear the advice of other men of large ability and experience. We need a man of judgment, wisdom in counsel, and of such caliber as to be able to stand the stormy times of unrest, when the old ship may have to sail tempestuous seas before it can resume its normal course of progress, he can say to officers and crew, as he labors to steer the ship through the storm. We need not much brilliant and hair-raising maneuvers as we do safe and manly leadership by a captain who knows the way."

"Ohio presents such a man for your deliberation. He is a stalwart, fighting Republican, who believes in the efficiency of representative government under party sponsorship. Knowing and heeding the lessons of the past, his face is toward the future—he is not a protesting progressive, but a practical, conservative, and he is a vote getter. The country needs the Republican party, the Republican party needs Ohio, and Ohio needs the nomination of a man to insure success. We believe we can carry Ohio this year for the nomination of this convention, whoever he may be, and we pledge our undivided effort from now till November to bring this nomination to pass. The date nominated victory is certain. The enemy carried Ohio in 1912 by Wood and in 1916 by Cox, but in between times, in 1914, a great forward-looking Ohio Republican was elected United States senator by a two-thirds majority, and he carried along to victory the whole Republican state ticket, with me at it, and he carried Ohio next November by two-thirds majority.

"If we had carried Ohio in 1916, a great Republican president could be in the White House today. If we carry it in 1920 the nominee of this convention will be inaugurated president March 4, 1921.

"In the name of Ohio Republicans, I present for your consideration the man who can carry Ohio, and thus insure Republican triumph—let modest, self-reliant, unassuming, but aggressive, sane, cool-headed leader of men, that typical American, Senator Warren G. Harding, of Ohio."

His clear voice filling the farthest corner of the great auditorium, Governor Willis brought the interest of the delegates back to the convention and kept the tired galleries quiet, except when they cheered him. He made a hit when he leaned over the platform railing and roared:

"Say, boys—and girls—why not."

But the laughter and cheers drowned out the rest of it.

The Ohio delegation got up and shouted for a minute after the nominating speech, but sat down again without attempting to start a parade in the hall. Harding delegates from other states, however, and Harding supporters in the galleries kept up the noise.

While there still was much noise, and at the end of ten minutes of Harding enthusiasm, Senator Lodge presented R. B. Creager of Brownsville, Texas, to second the nomination. When he began his speech the galleries quieted down. Harding, declared the speaker, could carry Texas and break the solid south.

Some more cheering having been quieted by the gavel the roll call was continued and there was another roar when Pennsylvania sent Mayor J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia to the platform to put her favorite son, Governor Sproul, in nomination.

Mayor Moore read his speech while the delegates and galleries again drifted off into disorder.

Eleven candidates for president were received in nomination by the Republican convention in the first eight hours of its session today.

Wood led off, Lowden followed, with Johnson third, and the rest of the list following.

For eight straight hours the convention sat listening, nominating and seconding speeches while efforts were made to have the convention adjourn after the speechmaking and let the tired delegates and alternates wait until tomorrow for the balloting. The most discussed plan, however, was to continue to at least two ballots before adjourning tonight.

At 5 o'clock, Chicago time, Senator Sutherland of West Virginia, the last of the list, was being placed in nomination.

The mayor's voice carried only a short way. During his address the sweltering delegates and spectators made themselves at home, so far as moving around and visiting was concerned. Now and then a solitary cheer blossomed out of the monotonous din of noises, some judge by the mayor's gesture that he was making a point.

"If either of them is nominated," he declared, "the issue before the American people will not be in the platform of the party—it will be on the corruption of the American people."

Senator Borah expressed his views at a public meeting of Johnson delegates.

"We have reached a time when it is necessary to talk frankly, not only with reference to the situation in the convention here," he said, "but also with reference to what the situation will be when we leave here with a candidate nominated and our platform in our pocket. I'm not here to gratify personal feeling for or against any candidate."

"From my standpoint the interests of the Republican party and of this country are superior to the right of any individual to hold office. Our first object is to nominate Hiram Johnson because he holds the confidence of the American people."

"I'd not pretend to say that there are not other men who could be elected if nominated by the convention tomorrow."

"But I do say with all sincerity that either of the two candidates now leading before the convention will not receive, if nominated hundreds of thousands of Republican votes."

"If either of the present two leading candidates is nominated the issue will be the corruption of the electorate. There is no way to avoid the issue. This cannot be blotted out or excused."

"I can take the records of these two men—and they are on file officially in Washington—read them to an audience and leave it to them if these men should go into the election."

"If I go into that convention tomorrow and ask for the rostrum for Mr. Wood's representatives to stand up and tell us what that nomination has cost?"

A dozen voices from the audience told him to "go to it."

"Suppose I should ask the other gentleman to stand up," he continued, "and ask how much they bid against Wood for the primary, and thus in precisely the situation before us."

"I have been a Republican all my life I even stayed with Mr. Taft in 1912 and that's going some. I am willing to support now any clean man and I will not support any man who is not clean."

Pennsylvania Will Stick. Pennsylvania delegates in caucus tonight without a record vote of opinion agreed to stand for Governor Sproul's nomination as long as they feel he has a chance.

Governor Sproul participated in the discussion saying the balloting was satisfactory to Pennsylvania and that the state was in a better strategic position than before the convention.

REPORT ON CONDITIONS IN SOVIET RUSSIA

LONDON, June 11.—The first report of the British labor delegates who have just returned from Russia was made public tonight.

The delegates declare themselves deeply impressed with the distress and disorganization which they found, the dejection of the people and the extent of the government's interference with individual liberty. The report is said to be unanimous.

The report describes the blockade as injurious to the world and disastrous to Russia and refers to the epidemic of disease to which the absence of soap and medical supplies has given full sway. It also denounces the Polish war.

It says war rallies all parties to the defense of the country; it emphasizes the breakdown in manufacturers through lack of raw material and advocates immediate recognition of Russia.

The delegates also brought a letter from Bolshevik Premier Lenin exhorting the workers to arise in England, which has created a sensation.
